

Association between rabbit café visitor experiences and motivations to feed feral rabbits

Visitors aged 18-25 reported higher likelihood of future feeding

No other measured factors were significantly associated with future feeding

Future research should examine why individuals feed feral rabbits to inform education and management strategies.